Sixth Course is the kind of neighborhood specialty shop everyone wishes for. When you first enter the Mission District shop on 15th Street, you are transported to a sweet sanctuary. It's the only place in the Bay Area where you'll find such a wide range of five-star choices: petits gâteaux, party cakes, tarts, verrines, gelato pops and sorbetto cups, truffles, coffee and tea--a complete dessert menu. The showroom features truffle inspired lights, sea glass tile, and three elegant cases displaying a trifacta of sweets. The name is inspired by an old family cookbook. It indicates Dessert as the sixth in a seven course menu, and the company logo of circles is the Sixth Course place

Co-owners and best friends, Bridget and Gianina have worked side by side in some of the city's finest restaurants and hotels, and have gathered some pretty impressive accolades and attention. Their unique style can be described as old-world meets new: French and Italian traditions are reimagined with a chic San Francisco twist.

Sixth Course serves the most beautifully crafted, creative desserts made with fresh, seasonal flavors, often at the intersection of sweet and savory. And tell your friends--gluten-free and dairy free options are always available! They make super cute wedding favors and business gifts, and offer wholesale/boutique partnerships.

Their award-winning truffles are handmade and include classic and whipped ganache centers, and silky liquid caramels.

The gelato pops at Sixth Course are small-batch-pasteurized and hand-dipped on site! They use local organic dairy for their made-from-scratch bases and source the best ingredients around for the inclusions.

With Sixth Course you have the option to take world-class desserts to your picnic or your romantic night in, to bring unique gifts to your next dinner party, or to serve the most incredible desserts at your special event.
